

SEATED EGO ERADICATOR
As printed in Manual (pg. 343)

Instruction is:
"Raise the arms to a 60° angle"

Our naked, genderless friend is actually falling a bit short of 60° (more like 50°)

This is the arms at 60°

This is how the illustration should appear

Above and below are examples of inaccuracies in the Aquarian Teacher's Manual illustrations, such as they are currently printed. This issue has generated some confusion and debate over the correct angles of the arms in Ego Eradicator. Perhaps these illustrations will clarify the issue and maybe come to the attention of the publishers for the consideration of future printings of this invaluable document in support of the teachings of this "Yoga of Angles".

STANDING EGO ERADICATOR
As printed in Manual (pg. 373)

Instruction is:
"When standing for Ego Eradicator, the angle is 30°, as pictured, for balance"

Here it is "as pictured". Our friend is really off the mark this time - by about 20°. Notice how the arm position for the standing and seated postures are the same - although supposed to be 60° and 30° respectively.

This is the arms at 30°. Much more "balanced" - as the instruction dictates.

This is how the illustration should appear